

MAC LESSON 6

PUT THE GENIE BACK IN THE BOTTLE

In Mac OS X, the "Genie" effect happens by default when you minimize an open window to the Dock. It's interesting to look at for a while, but after a time it gets to be a bit much. If you would rather just have things drop directly down to the Dock when you minimize them; here is how to do it.

Click on the Apple menu, click on System Preferences and then click on Dock. In the Dock preferences pane, in the pop-up menu for Minimize Using, select Scale Effects rather than Genie, and that will put a cork in the Genie bottle.
