

MAC LESSON #41

USE ADDRESS BOOK TO GET A MAP AND DRIVING DIRECTIONS TO AN ADDRESS

Tiger, the latest version of the Mac O/S, can do some fancy tricks with new features like Widgets, but the Address Book has a fancy trick too. It can automatically get a map and local directions to a person's physical address. Here's how.

From within Address Book, Just click and hold on a contact's address field (not the address itself, but the field title before it) and choose "Map Of" from the pop-up menu.

Address Book will go online (assuming that your Mac is connected to the Internet at the time) and get a map and directions to the location for you. Now how slick is that?
