

MAC LESSON #113

ADD PASSWORD HINT TO YOUR LOGIN

If you sometimes forget your password to login to OS X, you may want to add a password hint to your login.

The password hint will display after the third unsuccessful login attempt. The hint can really come in handy and save you major grief when you just can't remember that darn password. Here's how it's done.

Click on the Apple logo at the top-left of your screen, and then click on System Preferences. Now open Accounts, and then open Change Password, Re-enter your password as requested, type a hint in the Password Hint box, and click on Change Password. That's it - you're done.
